

IM Publications License Agreement for Online Access

Electronic editions of IM Publications journals are available on the IM Publications web site (www.impublications.com). Access is controlled by IP address. Your subscription entitles you to access for all users on a SINGLE site: university campus, company site or branch. We do not require at the moment any lengthy agreement or license to be signed by subscribers, but we will monitor developments with generic site licensing schemes and may implement such a scheme in the future. Access will only be set up once payment has been received (new subscriptions) and this form has been completed and returned to us.

Our only requirement is that you inform your users of the following and that you undertake to make your best efforts to see that they comply:

'The electronic files provided for the web edition are copyrighted and should not be passed in any form electronic, paper, fax or other to any person outside your site. This means that you must not pass any such material to people on other campuses of your university or other branches or sites of your companies. Please respect copyright and help us to continue to maintain low subscription rates.'
